

PRESS RELEASE

PAINTING FORWARD

Stefanie Brehm, Mahmut Celayir, Hildegard Elma, Jaime Gajardo, Lukas Glinkowski, Sabrina Haunsperg, Yury Kharchenko and Antje Zeiher

October 26 until December 17, 2016

„Painting forward“ at Galerie Judith Andreae displays picturesque positions, which illuminate and affect current as well as everlasting topics in their very own language.

Whether it may be an unusual choice of material or technique, current political reference or the reinterpretation of something already existing – the displayed works focus forward.

Lukas Glinkowski (Poland, *1984) frequently takes the subway in Berlin and banishes these impressions on tiled wall works. Stefanie Brehm (Germany, *1980) only „paints“ with Polyurethane and glues the hardened works on the wall. In addition she bakes clay-pillars in different heights, sprays them and places them in a room like human beings. Jaime Gajardo (Chile, *1979) selects a very unconventional color range for his landscape paintings.

Sabrina Haunsperg (Austria, *1980) primes her canvasses according to old formulas, in order to apply, pour and spray bright aluminium- and neon pigments.

While the kurdish artist Mahmut Celayir (Turkey, *1951) processes the political situation of Turkey in his paintings, Hildegard Elma (Germany, *1948) has always only painted brush lines in three different color shades on her canvasses.

The young painter Yury Kharchenko (Russia, *1986) reflects his jewish and russian roots in his works. Antje Zeiher (Germany, *1979) abducts the viewer of her abstract works into visual spaces, which rise from her thoughts, however clearly refer back to the current image of our environment and surrounding.

„Painting forward“ shows subjectly selected, what painting is capable of expressing.
